THE ART OF STORYTELLING

AN INTRODUCTION

What is Storytelling?

Storytelling is the interactive art of using words and actions to reveal the elements and images of a story while encouraging the listener's imagination

Telling is standing or sitting and using one's voice or sign language to present a story without reading from a book

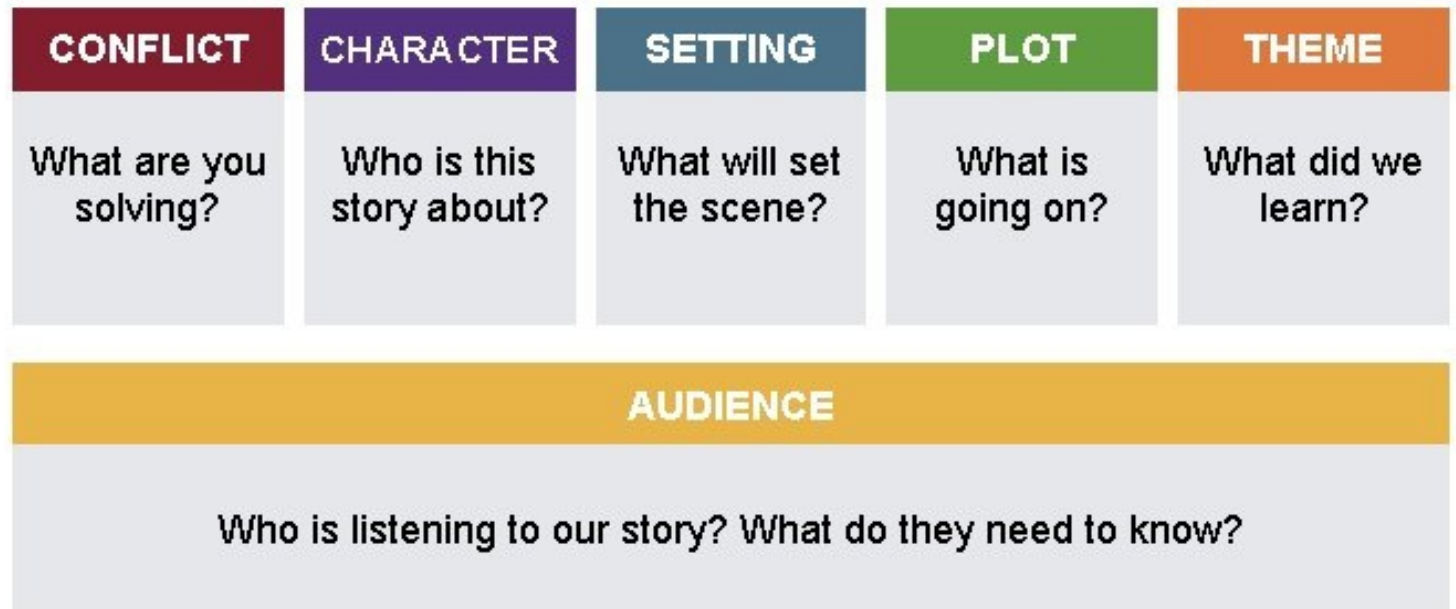

Every culture has its own stories or narratives, which are shared as a means of entertainment, education, cultural preservation or instilling moral values

Storytelling emerges from the interaction and cooperative, coordinated efforts of teller and audience

Why Tell Stories

Telling stories is natural.

Whether you're describing your day at work, catching up on neighborhood news, or reconnecting with old friends, you're naturally telling and hearing stories. If you communicate in a natural way during an interview or presentation, you'll feel more comfortable and come across as relaxed and authentic.

We can relate.

We relate to people and to what happens to them more so than we relate to data, warnings or explanations. If you tell a story about someone your audience can identify with, or an experience they or a loved one may have had, they'll understand your message and remember it.

Stories get repeated.

What do you do when you hear a good story? You find someone to tell. In some situations, it might be called gossip, but when audiences hear and remember a strong story you tell, they're likely to repeat it, widening your audience.
